Assessors Should Decide On Tax Exempt Land . . . State

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON

Should religious, educational, and charitable groups be exempt from paying taxes on land that is not specifically used for those purposes?

The Temporary State Commission of State and Local Finance has recommended that local assessors be permitted to judge what land should be tax exempt.

A number of Ulster County officials feel the idea has merit considering that there is a total of $72 million in total property exemptions in the 20 towns of the county compared with $3.4 million in Sullivan County. About a quarter of the tax exemptions are taken by religious, scouting, some educational, historic and patriotic groups. The balance is owned by state, town and county governments, fire departments, schools, and colleges.

Shawangunk is the biggest loser in Ulster County with $13 million in exempt property.

The State Commission's recommendation is in keeping with legislation advanced by the Assembly's Real Property Tax Committee which predicts that a changing of the tax exemption rules will pass this year. The state commission has suggested that the legislature re-define the meaning of the word "exemption" as used in the State Constitution.

The commission is specifically concerned about those lands owned by religious organizations in particular which are not used directly for religious purposes.

A case in point is the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society which owns a total of tax exempt property in Shawangunk and Gardiner in the amount of $12,015,000.

Watchtower owns three tracts in Shawangunk, one with an exempt value of $900,000, another at $10,635,000 and a third at $200,000. Of that land, 400 acres is used for buildings, the Kingdom Hall and residences, but 591 acres are in field crops according to the records of the Ulster County Real Property Tax Agency. It also has 610 acres in Gardiner.

About a year ago, Legislator Robert H. Kuhlmann (R-Dist. 7) moved to have the legislature go on record opposing the Watchtower's plan to acquire more acreage in Ulster County which would have to be taken off the tax rolls and given exempt status. The county board approved the measure.

Kuhlmann argued that religious organizations should pay "their fair share" of taxes on anything outside of religious buildings.

In its report the state commission said that for many years the constitutional exemption has merely been repeated in statute, without legislative definition. The commission recommended limiting the exemption to property used exclusively for constitutionally stated purposes.

Richard Decker, executive director of the state commission, said that the question of exempted land was given high priority as a result of public hearings throughout the state. He said the present law grants hundreds of different types of exemptions and each time one is granted the burden is shifted to the remaining taxpayers.

If the law is changed to allow a local assessor to determine exemptions, it is possible that many acres now off the tax rolls would be returned to them, in turn saving county taxpayers untold thousands of dollars.

Reynolds said it is difficult to determine at this time the total amount that the county is losing each year but it is considerable. In the case of Shawangunk, the land there is assessed at full value.

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago said the county board is following the progress of the state commission and the legislation pending in Albany.

In addition to Shawangunk other towns like Denning, Hardenburgh and Esopus are also particularly feeling the effect of exemptions.

Total exemptions by towns are as follows: Denning, $1.2 million; Esopus, $1.9 million; Gardiner, $456,950; Hardenburgh, $130,240; Hurley, $583,650; Town of Kingston $3,400; Lloyd, $1.9 million.

Marbletown, $1.9 million; Marlborough, $824,288; New Paltz, $14 million; Olive, $640,125; Plattekill, $562,800; Rochester, $637,100; Rosendale, $204,800; Saugerties, $876,100; Shandaken, $216,650; Shawangunk, $30 million; Ulster, $1.2 million; Wawarsing, $1.4 million; Woodstock, $1.3 million.

Cong Promises S. Viet Elections

By United Press International

The new government in South Vietnam said today there was still scattered resistance to the Communist takeover and warned the "reactionary remnants" they would be severely punished.

Radio Saigon broadcasts monitored in Bangkok also said thousands of troops from the former South Vietnamese army, including four generals, had surrendered in accordance with orders issued by the new regime.

Delayed dispatches from UPI's Saigon bureau said Sunday the Viet Cong has promised to hold nationwide elections in South Vietnam but refused to set a date for the vote.

The government has also called for reunification of North and South Vietnam, but said its first priority was normalizing life in Saigon.

The radio broadcast said the new South Vietnamese government was being reorganized in traditional Communist form and "revolutionary committees" had been established in each of Saigon's 11 districts.

The broadcast reported an editorial in Saigon's only newspaper which said, "there still remain many reactionary wicked and obdurate elements ... who still harbor the daydream of 'using a crutch to oppose the sky.'"

"In a number of areas, they refuse to report, hide weapons and perform scattered acts of opposing the revolution, sabotaging order and security, sowing false news, encroaching on the people's life and property or setting up phony revolutionary committees."

The editorial warned they would be "severely punished," a common euphemism for execution.

"Since our forces and people have defeated half a million U.S. troops and more than a million puppet troops, there is no reason for them to allow a group of reactionary remnants to act at will," it said.

However, UPI correspondents in Saigon said there had been no reports of armed opposition in the city since the Communist takeover April 30.

In another broadcast, Radio Saigon reported that since military registration was ordered last Thursday, 24 generals, 400 colonels, and thousands of troops had turned themselves in.

The radio said most were allowed to return to their homes. It said the generals included Maj. Gen. Truong Minh Dao, former commander of the 18th ARVN division at Xuan Loc, and Lt. Gens. Nguyen Van Ty and Nguyen Huu Co, both former defense ministers.

Delayed dispatches from UPI's Saigon bureau said Sunday the leader of the "military management committee" running the South Vietnamese capital announced plans last week for the election.

Gen. Tran Van Tra told a news conference last Thursday the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government would drop the word "Provisional" from its title after the vote.

"When there is a general election there will be no more 'Provisional,'" the general said.

Tra refused to set a date for the election, however, and said the military committee would stay in power "to organize normal life" and put down any security threats in Saigon.

"That is why we cannot speak of a time limit," he said.

The general held his news conference under the crystal chandeliers of an ornately carpeted room in the fallen government's presidential palace.

Tra, head of the 11-member committee running Saigon, said security is still the major problem in the South Vietnamese capital.

The UPI dispatches, dated last Thursday, arrived in Hong Kong Sunday after being routed through the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi.

UPI Saigon bureau manager Alan Dawson and UPI Asian news editor Leon Daniel signed the dispatches. It was not known if the reports were censored.

Gen. Tra, in his news conference, vowed to take over all property owned by evacuated U.S. citizens "because American imperialism has not honored its commitments" to the 1973 Paris peace agreement.

The general promised a "policy of leniency" toward South Vietnamese refugees who fled the country before the Communist takeover.

"Our government will continue to take care of every Vietnamese at home or abroad, with the exception of a number of reactionary ring-leaders or people who continue to cling to foreign imperialism," he said.

Nguyen Thi Ut became the bride of Thomas Hejl in a beach ceremony at Camp Asan, one of the main refugee camps on Guam. Nguyen phoned Hejl in New York City after arriving in Guam a week ago as a refugee. Hejl rushed to Guam, searched the refugee camps and found his girl friend of three years among more than 50,000 refugees. At right is Guam Governor Ricardo J. Bordallo who married the couple. Ex-Kingstonian Working With Refugees

By Carl Graham

KINGSTON

Opposition to Vietnamese refugees isn't coming from the people who are working with them, according to a former Kingstonian now working in the Fort Chaffee, Arkansas processing center.

"On the contrary," reports Marc B. Adin, who with his wife is working 12-hour shifts at the center. "When you meet the Vietnamese people and realize the patience and stamina they have, you can't help but respect them."

Many of the people in Fort Smith, Arkansas where Marc and wife are living temporarily, have volunteered for 12-hour shifts at nearby Fort Chaffee, aiding in processing the Vietnamese being flown into the center as part of a massive relocation program.

Adin also put to rest the rumor that only the wealthier Vietnamese who could buy their way out or those with close ties to someone in America were successful in leaving their war-torn country.

"It's a mistake to think they are all rich," Adin said. "Only about 10 percent of them have more than a few dollars. The rest of them come with no money, no sponsors, no nothing — just the clothes on their backs."

The occasional rich refugee does make for some startling contrasts, however. Adin said that shortly after processing a former chief justice of the Vietnamese Supreme Court he found himself caring for a woman and two small children with nothing but the clothes they wore.

The Vietnamese are not strangers to Adin. After graduating from Kingston High School he went into the service and was sent to Vietnam, where he was wounded. He came home with a punctured eardrum, concussion, malaria, mononucleosis, and several other ailments that now entitle him to a small pension.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron A. Adin of 150 Washington Avenue enrolled at the State University College at New Paltz, where he majored in American History and culture and Asian studies, a combination that resulted in his assignment to Fort Chaffee by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) office in Dallas, where he normally works.

Adin, a vocal opponent of the Vietnam war for a long time, was active in campus affairs at New Paltz as a member of the Vietnam Veterans Opposed to the War. He is still at a loss to understand those who supported the government's conduct of the war.

"The people who were extremely vocal in supporting the war are now the most vocal in opposing the refugees," he noted.

Processing of refugees, after a preliminary physical exam, separates those with resources and American sponsors from those with neither resources or sponsors. Sponsors are limited to spouses, parents, or children, and do not include brothers and sisters. Non-sponsored refugees face a wait of from one to three months in the refugee centers, he said.

Adin and his wife are attempting to sponsor two women, one of whom served as a translator at the American embassy in Saigon, and her younger sister. The older woman now serves as Adin's translator in dealing with the refugees at Fort Chaffee.

Adin issued a plea for people in the Kingston area to consider becoming sponsors for some of the people now pouring into refugee relocation centers at Camp Pendleton, California, Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, and Fort Chaffee. Arrangements can be made through the International Refugee Organization, the American Red Cross or the Salvation Army, he said.

Renovation of Auditorium Criticized Again by UCCAC

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Community Action Committee has again asked the city to shift its emphasis from recreation to housing rehabilitation in its Community Development Program.

But Mayor Francis R. Koenig, so far, is playing a pat hand.

Koenig's hand was considerably strengthened last Tuesday by the announcement from Washington that HUD had approved the city's $1,359,000 application for funding under the first year of the program without amendment.

Community Action had asked HUD to hold off on the city's application until some of its (Community Action's) concerns had been addressed by the city. HUD, which had until June 10 to review the city's application, obviously chose to ignore the criticism of UCCAC.

As a result of HUD's action, Community Action has only two ways to go: to Koenig or to court. Both sides say they want to avoid a court battle over Kingston Community Development program.

Most of that criticism has been and continues to circulate around Koenig's plan to spend $375,000 for the renovation and conversion of the Municipal Auditorium into a rad-town neighborhood center.

And it was the auditorium which was the prime topic of discussion at Friday's meeting in Koenig's office between officials from UCCAC and staff and the Ad Hoc Committee for community development headed by Estelle Kattleson.

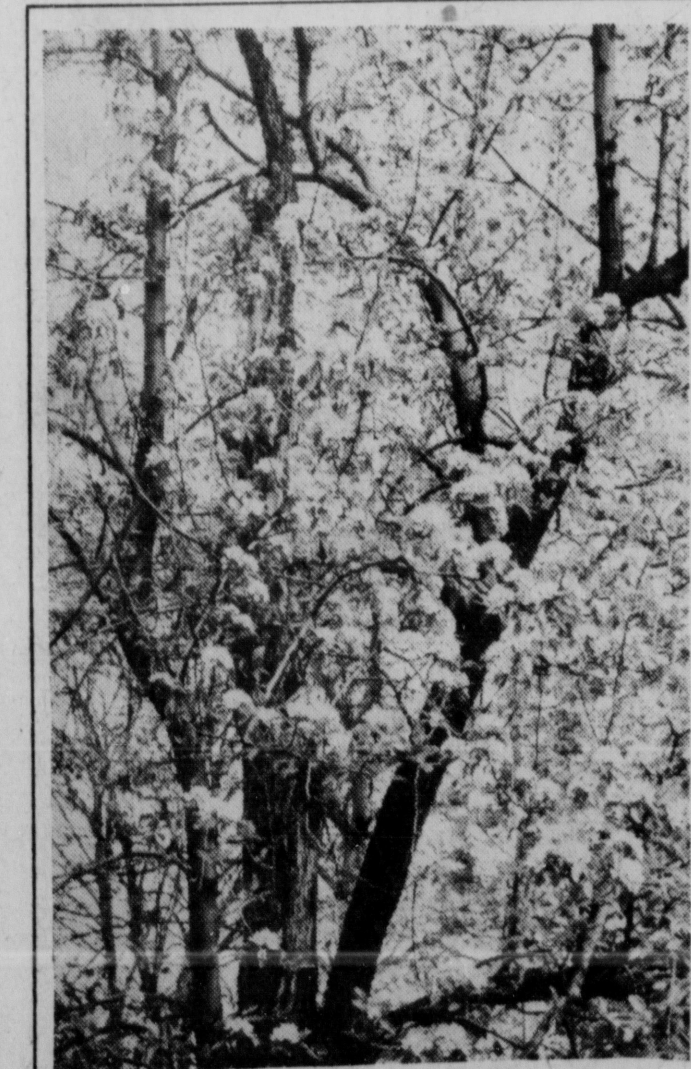

A number of points about the decision on the municipal auditorium were clarified, however. It was determined that the decision was Koenig's and not the Community Development Advisory Council.

Steve Tullberg, an attorney with UCCAC, brought that point home with the observation that the Advisory Council had neither discussed nor recommended what amounts to the single largest project in the city's community development program. Neither did any of the more than 50 persons who spoke at two public hearings in January.

"It was your decision," he told Koenig. "You can't undo it."

Tullberg attempted to use that fact as leverage in getting Koenig to switch funds from the building into housing. Koenig deferred to the Community Development Advisory Council. Tullberg again pointed out that it had been and was Koenig's decision.

UCCAC meets with the Community Development Advisory Council on May 16.

Proposed Bill Would Soften State Drug Law

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Two Republican leaders in the State Senate have proposed legislation which would ease a plea bargaining section of former Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's "get tough" drug law.

Another measure in the criminal justice package introduced by Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson and Ralph J. Marino, chairman of the Committee on Crime and Correction, would set up the machinery to crack down on public officials who unlawfully leak material to the press.

Anderson and Marino said in a weekend statement their proposal would allow persons to plead guilty to a felony at most two classes below that with which they were originally charged, for instance, from a Class A to a Class C felony.

Under the legislation, pushed through by Rockefeller two years ago, persons charged with Class A felonies were not allowed to plea bargain to lower classes. It was intended to guarantee prison terms for many drug offenders.

However, plea bargaining was allowed from one level of Class A felony to another, and was not restricted at all for other classes of felonies.

"The bill tightens up the law so that persons accused of Class B or C felonies, which include most of the serious offenses such as manslaughter, rape, arson and armed robbery, cannot plead guilty to less than a Class D or E felony, respectively," they said.

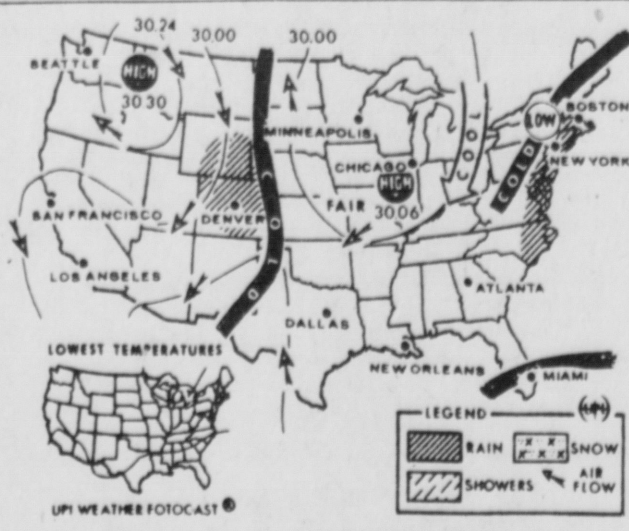

Anderson and Marino Saturday night also proposed the establishment of independent investigators, supervised by the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court, to probe any charges that public officials were illegally leaking material.

Their statement said the proposal would apply when "the disclosures charge the commission of a crime or where they claim a person is under investigation for the commission of a crime."

Exceptions would include cases when disclosure was necessary to an investigation or warned the public of a danger.

Other proposals would:

- Set a mandatory two-year prison sentence for persons convicted of first or second degree weapons possession after a previous weapons conviction even a misdemeanor.
- Mandate a person's civil right not to be assaulted by jail or prison guards while a prisoner and charge the state attorney general's office with investigating any allegations of prisoner beatings.
- Prohibit the questioning of rape victims about their prior sexual experiences, unless a judge ruled that the testimony was relevant. Such a measure has already passed the Assembly.

Conservation Field Days

KINGSTON

The Ninth Annual Ulster County Environmental Conservation Field Days will attract 1,312 sixth grade students from 22 area schools, Tuesday at Mohonk Gateway Nature Center in New Paltz and Wednesday at Morgan Hill Game Center in Hurley.

"Energy — as related to the conservation and wise use of our natural resources," will be the theme of the event which is being sponsored by a host of organizations and individuals.

Field stations will be set up with the youngsters visiting each one periodically and being given instruction in such things as wildlife, water, forestry, recreation, recycling, health, soils and land.

Students will be given opportunity to express their observations of the field days through an essay contest sponsored by the New York Association of Soil Conservation Districts and Pomona Grange.

Cash prizes will be awarded at the state and national levels, first place winners in each school will receive certificates and second place winners, subscriptions to Conservation magazine.

Francis E. Mulvaney is chairman of the event. He represents the Ulster County Soil and Water Conservation District. Serving on the Advisory Committee are: Warren McKeon, director, New York State Department of Environmental Conservation; George Sisco, district conservationist, Soil and Water Conservation District; William Palmer, county coordinator, agricultural division and Paul Strombeck, 4-H cooperative extension agent, Ulster County Cooperative Extension Association; Karen Frampton, Ulster County Department of Health; Daniel Smiley, Thomas Latham, Sharon Cotanche, Paul Keller, Anthony Bonavist and Harold Hogan.

Hinchey Discusses Problem Of Malpractice Insurance

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON
A proposal to transfer responsibility for professional discipline in medicine from the New York State Board of Regents to the state health department is suggestive of putting a fox in charge of a chicken house, Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) told those attending a breakfast Sunday at Temple Emanuel.

Hinchey spoke out on the prospect of New Yorkers having to go without medical care if doctors do not accept a 200 per cent increase in malpractice premiums or, if legislation to alleviate the problem is not passed in Albany by July 1 when the Argonaut Insurance Company of California's contract runs out.

Asked if the medical profession was policing itself, Hinchey replied that "five per cent of the complaints come from the medical profession, five per cent from the health department and 90 per cent come from the outside."

Hinchey spoke mainly in favor of an Assembly proposal which he said the legislature is "trying to get together on." He explained that it provides for an insurance plan in which joint underwriters (a pool plan) would provide coverage backed up by a state insurance fund, in case of insolvency. The plan in which 131 insurance companies would participate, is "agreed to generally by both houses," he explained.

The second provision would deal with tort which would take the burden of proof away from the injured party and place the responsibility in the hands of a mediation panel of three. The panel would look at the case on its merit and make a recommendation as to whether a claim should be paid. Although Hinchey, the Assembly, consumers and the legal profession reportedly favor the plan, the New York State Senate and the state's physicians struck out against it.

It also provides that the plaintiff involved be given opportunity to go to court but that the findings of the panel would be admissible in court.

"That point is being negotiated," Hinchey explained, adding that he favors the mediation panel.

The third provision is in the area of discipline with the Assembly suggesting that the responsibility be transferred from the Regents to the New York State Board of Health but Hinchey does not concur. He would also like to see insurance companies, after paying a malpractice claim, refer the case to the State Education Department for disciplinary consideration.

Also concerned that state aid to education has declined steadily over the last decade, the Saugerties assemblyman, a former State Education Department employee, would like to see financing of education tied in with state income tax with less emphasis on tapping real property taxes.

Feeling that we are faced with a decline in the level of education, he predicts that teachers will be dropped from the payrolls, and curriculums will suffer unless there is a greater increase in state aid to education. But, he said, property taxes keep going up and there is no other place to get the money other than state income tax.

He suggested that about one per cent more increase in the state tax would increase the aid by 17 per cent instead of the present 15 per cent per district. Hinchey said "there is an alternate plan in the Senate but that it would produce only half of the needed revenue and would only mean keeping pace with what we have now."

Concerning the Ulster County Legislature's passage this week of a measure which would allow the county to make application for an office for the aging which would be state aided, Hinchey was enthusiastic saying he would be "happy to guide it through." Although the Ulster County Senior Citizen's Alliance has been opposed to the move, Hinchey pointed out that there are only 3,000 "visible senior citizens" in the county out of a 30,000 population of the elderly whom he feels would benefit from the office.

Ulster County Community College's Renaissance Faire held Saturday and Sunday at the Stone Ridge campus lived up to its easily predicted success attracting one and all who wished to relive with full measure the good times that made up the original fairs. Ft. Ticonderoga Program Opens State Bicentennial FT. TICONDEROGA, N.Y. (UPI) — New York State's Bicentennial celebration is off to a strong start, with at least 40,000 persons observing the 200th anniversary of the capture of Ft. Ticonderoga.

With fife and drum music filling the air, the state's bicentennial program officially got underway Saturday as more than 160 descendants of Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys re-staged the fort's bloodless takeover, hailed as the first rebel victory of the young Revolution.

In the first of three reenactments, the brightly clad "patriots" crossed Lake Champlain from Vermont — this time with the aid of motor boats — and then raced up the slope to the fort.

The turnout, boosted by clear skies and temperatures in the low 70s, far exceeded the predictions of organizers, who had been expecting 20,000 persons.

"At least 40,000 to 50,000 have come to the fort. We've never had anything like it," said Commissioner Donald A. Carter of the town of Ticonderoga police. He served as director of traffic and safety for the affair.

Dr. John K. Lattimer, a descendant of Ethan Allen, repeated his famous relative's orders to surrender the fort "in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress."

Chairman of the department of urology at Columbia University, Lattimer then took the British flag and declared what was the young Revolution's first major victory.

In opening the official celebration, Gov. Hugh L. Carey indirectly referred to the nation's troubles and said, "Let us admit that we are still trying to attain a more perfect union."

"If we call for unity in these times, let it not be a false unity that hides our blemishes, but a true unity that works together to erase them," Carey said.

Numerous fife and drum corps, as well as colonial military groups, roamed the grounds or mustered at their encampments outside the fort. The majority of the groups were from New York, Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Although the actual seizure of the fort 200 years ago did not have major military impact in itself, it provided a needed morale boost for the rebel cause and the cannons captured by Allen proved important in forcing the British to evacuate Boston.

Plastic Blight

The trouble with plastic "throwaway" containers is that most of them, when thrown away, stay around a long time as a blight on the landscape. Generally speaking, plastic is not biodegradable; it does not appeal to bacteria, and unlike even the biggest fallen tree it does not rot and enrich the soil. It lasts and lasts, clinging to its container identity.

This is a matter of great concern to environmentalists — to anyone who cares a whit about the appearance of our roadsides and picnic grounds. That is why the Environmental Defense Fund has filed suit in the U.S. Court of Appeals to permit a Food and Drug Administration ban on manufacture of the throwaways.

The FDA is not adverse to this; it agrees that such containers, expected to be widely used in time for beer and soft drinks, are a potential blight. Its position is that under present law it cannot ban the containers on environmental grounds, but it has invited legal action to clarify the issue.

It is an issue of no small importance. If the court rules against the FDA's authority to ban production of plastic throwaway containers, Congress ought to act to provide for such controls by the FDA or some other agency.

Mills' Lesson

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas is the latest addition to the roster of public figures who have come to realize that being on the wagon gives a better view of the world. His remarks on the subject after a three-month sojourn in a Florida treatment center are instructive.

The former longtime chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee said he began drinking in an effort to relieve the tensions and exhaustion bred by that difficult job. Now he says: "It didn't relieve me of my tensions. It did not relieve me of my tiredness as some people think it will."

Mills offered other hard-won insights into his condition—and, by extension, that of others who have slipped into alcoholism without being fully aware of it. "I am trying," he said, "to get over a disease, one of the most insidious diseases known to man. I feel as though I had a malignancy."

How should such a "malignancy" be dealt with? The answer, as Mills and others in his situation have learned, lies in abstinence. As to this he said, "certain people can't take a drink without taking another and I'm one of them."

The Arkansas congressman has perforce become something of an expert on the telltale signs that indicate one is becoming an alcoholic. He offered a piece of advice as to this, also: "Don't ever get to the point where you can't lay that drink aside." Several relevant points have been well made by this man, once a presidential aspirant, whose distinguished career in public life was all but ruined by excessive indulgence in alcohol.

Berry's World

"Here chick, chick, chick! Come and get it — my income tax rebate!"

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Not long after the Communists captured Phnom Penh and consolidated their hold on Cambodia, they issued the following secret instructions:

"Eliminate all high-ranking military officials, government officials. Do this secretly. Also get provincial officers who owe the Communist party a blood debt."

These are the exact words, translated into English, that went out over the Khmer Rouge communications network. U.S. intelligence intercepted the radio transmission and sent a translation to Washington by secret cable.

We have taken pains to obtain the secret cable and to quote the exact language, because the Communists have denied press reports that a bloodbath is taking place in the captured countries.

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — On April 14, the Senate by routine voice vote confirmed President Ford's nomination of John F. Lehman, Jr., as deputy director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA), without dissent, without debate, without newspaper publicity — and without a hint of the vicious fight waged backstage for four months.

Had it been up to the elected Senators, Lehman's nomination would have rushed through the Senate months ago. But staffers of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and of its members mounted a campaign against him of vendetta intensity. Indeed, Lehman was doomed. Only stubborn intervention by one Democratic Senator, Gale McGee of Wyoming, salvaged him.

The Lehman affair is a case study of one alarming aspect in the multiple revolution on Capitol Hill. As the congressional bureaucracy grows in Parkinsonian dimensions to match their brethren downtown, appointed staffers inevitably seize policy functions from their elected bosses, usually with an eye toward usurping power from the executive branch. As for Senate foreign policy staffers, the phenomenon is well advanced.

Well-educated young veterans of the U. S. Foreign Service, disaffected with this country's generation-long cold war policies, in recent years have travelled a circuit between bipartisan Senate staff posts and the Brookings Institute, the Kennedy Institute and other non-profit organizations. Because they agree on a revisionist view of the cold war and confer frequently, critics variously describe them as the "Cabal," the "Underground" and the "Mafia." A more accurate, less pejorative description might be the "Network."

Until his defeat last year, Sen. J.W. Fulbright of Arkansas as Foreign Relations Committee chairman was the Network's leader and protector. Some conservative Senators expected Fulbright's successor, Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama, to hire non-Network staffers for the committee. But Sparkman, 75, has distributed nothing so far.

In fact, Sparkman's first policy speech as chairman, on Jan. 28, read as though filched from Bill Fulbright's briefcase ("we remain divided by short-sighted rivalries and short-spirited, obsolete nationalisms"). It was written by Network staffers inherited from Fulbright. Chairmen come and go, but the Network flourishes — up to a point, that is, as seen from the Lehman affair.

When Lehman was first suggested for the ACDA post, Network alarm signals were flashed. As congressional operative for Henry Kissinger at the National Security Council, Lehman proved a hard-liner ideologically and a prickly antagonist personally. So, last December the committee staff informed Secretary of State Kissinger that the Senate would not confirm Lehman for any job.

Mr. Ford nominated him anyway, triggering a Network campaign against Lehman of such extent that we can only give a taste of it. Leading the charge were committee staffers Richard Moose (famed for Vietnam inspection trips on Fulbright's behalf) and William Ashworth, along with Pete Lakeland, foreign policy aide to Sen. Jacob Javits of New York.

They fought on two fronts: anti-Lehman emos circulating in the Senate to stir up opposition; telephone calls to administration officials reporting Senate opposition. Ashworth Americans. One report claims 120 people were hauled out of DaNang and executed.

Footnote: The Communists also have been acutely embarrassed, according to intelligence reports, by press reports of refugees fleeing from them. Many of the refugees who got away, according to the cables, say they left because they feared for their lives.

HUMPHREY HOWLS: In sharp language intended strictly for the eyes of his staff, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., has accused Administration spokesmen of scaring the country into a continuing recession.

"If these Administration spokesmen keep talking as they are," he wrote to aide John Stark, "they're going to scare the living daylight out of everybody . . ."

"The greatest single impediment and obstacle to economic recovery are the pessimistic and frightening statements of Administration spokesmen. If they'd just shut up for about a month, cool their rhetoric and let this economy start moving again without shouting scare words, I think we'd be on the road to recovery."

Humphrey is chairman of the Joint Congressional Economic Committee, which oversees the economy. He was particularly disturbed, according to his private memo, over Treasury Secretary William Simon's "constant pronouncements that the federal deficit cannot be financed without choking off money and credit for the private sector."

"It seems to me that, if the economic counselors to the President are doing their job, they would be able to schedule government financing in such a manner as not to really interfere with the private and corporate financing."

CHINESE SUPPORT: Since the Saigon surrender, Peking has secretly encouraged the United States to hold the line in Asia. The Chinese apparently want to keep American military power in Asia as a bulwark against the Soviet threat.

The Chinese discouraged North Korea's Kim Il-Sung, according to the secret cables, from stirring up trouble on the 38th parallel. He wanted to take advantage of the U.S. setbacks in Southeast Asia and had gone to Peking to sound out the Chinese about it.

The Chinese even indicated, strictly unofficially, that they would not object to U.S. support for Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Thailand and other nations surrounding Indochina.

The Chinese took exception of course, to Defense Secretary James Schlesinger's statement including Taiwan in the U.S. defense line. They also are committed to support Communist insurgencies throughout the world. But strictly on the QT, the Chinese don't want the U.S. armed forces to leave the Far East.

GAS LOBBY The massive lobbying campaign to jack up natural gas prices picked up speed at a private meeting between the Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers on March 26, according to internal memos in our possession. While most big companies plotted to de-regulate the prices, a few companies have fought to keep natural gas prices down by maintaining regulation.

AMBASSADOR HAYS? Blunt-spoken Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, a power in the House, was considered last fall for the ambassador's job in England. Hays confirmed that he was approached about the post by a White House aide but that he "was never really sure whether it was an offer or just a feeler." In any case, he "didn't take it seriously" because he was "busy with the campaign committee."

Inside Report

The Foreign Policy 'Networks'

sent liberal committee members a memo accusing Lehman of being "conservative on arms matters." On Jan. 7, Moose told ACDA director Fred Ikle that Lehman was personally objectionable to Fulbright. On Jan. 14, committee staff director Pat Holt warned White House lobbyist Pat O'Donnell that pursuing Lehman's nomination would embarrass the President.

By the time hearings began, the Network had two Senators opposed to Lehman — Stuart Symington of Missouri and Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island. That was enough to drag out intermittent hearings from Feb. 11 through March 17, prohibiting anything remotely derogatory — including Lehman's doctoral thesis to indicate anti-congressional deviationism. Thanks mainly to McGee's defense, it was not enough.

When Symington demanded reassurance from Kissinger that he really wanted Lehman, Network allies inside the State Department hinted that perhaps Henry ought to drop this hot potato. But Kissinger was adamant, cabling his endorsement of Lehman from Egypt.

On March 17, the committee finally voted, 9 to 6, for Lehman's confirmation, galvanizing the Network into heroic efforts. Scrambling for votes, staffers claimed a new tally would show an 8-8 tie, defeating the nomination. But Chairman Sparkman, presided by McGee and Sen. Henry M. Jackson (not a committee member), finally ordered the staff to report the nomination to the floor as it should have been done days earlier. That ended all hope of stopping Lehman (though Symington delayed Senate action until April 14).

Had Fulbright been around, there is little doubt he and the Network would have managed Lehman's rejection in committee as they had in 1973 with hard-liner G. McMurtrie Godley for Assistant Secretary of State. Sparkman is obviously a transitional chairman to be succeeded by Sen. Frank Church of Idaho. While ideologically sympathetic with the Network (he voted against Lehman), Church is not considered a willing accomplice for brass knuckle fighting. Thus, Church's accession is the best, long-range hope that foreign policy decisions in the Senate will be made by elected representatives, not their tireless employees.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

A Bunch of Third-Raters

When I disagree, I am inclined to be loud. This, of course, is vulgar. But, as a lifetime student of man, I see people in relation to others who preceded them. For example, I think the President is sly when he calls the immigration of 130,000 Vietnamese "an act of mercy."

I think he's afraid to tell us that Thieu blackmailed him. The implied threat was that unless we accepted the unwanted babies, and unless we accepted the affluent adults, Thieu would not permit our 6,000 Americans to leave. He could not be responsible, he said in a speech, for what his people might do to our people.

That's a threat. We spent $150 billion and 56,000 of the cream of our manhood propping Thieu in his American-made palace. When he fell, and couldn't find a plane big enough to carry his gold bullion, he called us traitors.

Forgive me, but Thieu is a heel. A vicious ingrate. My feelings about historical figures of this decade are best summed up by stating that most of our world leaders are less than meets the eye.

I was scanning a book written by Donald Robinson for Putnam called "The Hundred Most Important People in the World Today." Mr. Robinson is a qualified pro. The copyright line is 1970, so, in reading this time, we are looking backward at his judgments of five years ago.

The opening chapter is headed: "Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States, the most important man in the world." Bear in mind, this book is not going to remain dusty on the shelves of public libraries for a long time. Children of this and the next generation will read it.

Among the 100 most important men he lists Charles de Gaulle, Monsieur le President was the most selfish, intractable leader of a defeated nation in modern times. The U.S. had to give uniforms and guns to Gen. Leclerc's division so that they could parade into Paris as victors.

Tito is listed far ahead of such great men as Jonas Salk and Enrico Fermi. The only credit which can be accorded to Tito is that he divorced his brand of Communism from the Soviet Union and made Stalin tremble to Yugoslavia's independence.

Gamal Nasser is listed as "leader of the Arab world." He led Egypt into losing two wars with little Israel. The Arab world listened to King Faisal. Nasser and Faisal are dead, but Faisal was so strong he wouldn't permit Nasser to shine his shoes. Assuming that Faisal wore shoes.

Indira Gandhi and Golda Meir were two leaders of government who, if you take a look at India and Israel, should have tried needlepoint.

Fidel Castro was indeed a leader. When he was in the Sierra Maestras, sobbing for freedom, he was a poor general indeed. If he is among the 100 world leaders, then enslavement of a noble nation is a righteous thing. It is no longer a question of whether the U.S. will recognize Cuba, but how much it will cost to have Cuba recognize us.

Moshe Dayan is dubbed "the war hero who directs Israel's fight for survival." If you want a hawk instead of a dove, Dayan is a great man.

Robert McNamara, "who long guided U.S. efforts in the Vietnam War," is among the 100 greatest. That should sink him in history. He was a Kennedy sycophant who, as secretary of Defense, was a cold autocrat who ran us into the deepest debt. He once contracted for one fighter plane to serve both the Air Force and the carrier fleet. It didn't work.

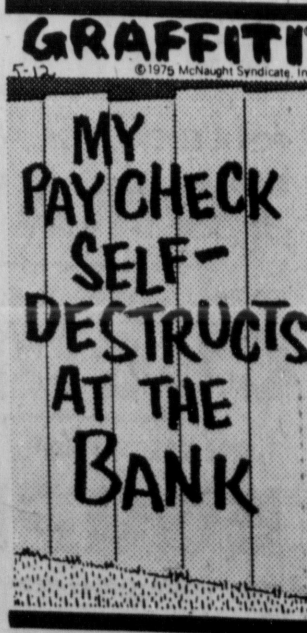

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, applauds Chief Executives who raise salaries beyond 5 percent, and crudely insults those who regard him as less than a kingmaker. He's old and loud.

Pope Paul VI. Now you're on my home ground. He seems to think that silence connotes intellectuality. Like Meany, he's an "aginner." I have waited a long time to hear of something he favors. He is to John XXIII what a nod is to enduring love.

McGeorge Bundy seems to be listed only because he is "head of the multi-billion dollar Ford Foundation." Bundy is, beyond argument, a blinking winking intellectual. Give him all that money and he knows what to do with it. You could do as well.

I disagree with much of what men do in this decade. The world, I feel, is heavy with third-rate statesmen, first-rate scientists, and cowardly generals. America, which is the greatest, strongest, most charitable nation in the world, hasn't got a loyal friend.

Why not list Henry Kissinger in that group of the 100 greatest? Never, in the history of man, has anyone tried harder and failed so miserably...

Area Hospitals Plan Special Programs During National Hospital Week

Constant concern for the health of the community is the theme now as four area hospitals — Benedictine, Kingston, Ellenville and Northern Dutchess all observe National Hospital Week, May 11-17 with programs and tributes to employees and volunteers.

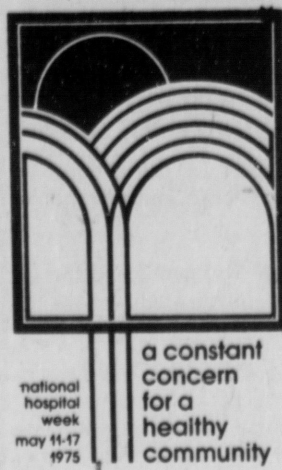

The four health care centers are among 7,000 hospitals across the country who are sponsoring the week in an effort to create a public awareness of the hospital's role in the community.

Benedictine President Sister Mary Charles and Kingston Hospital Administrator Anthony R. Triulzi explained that when people are sick the problem and the concern become both real and immediate.

"However, in the large sense, the hospital is a true community institution and a community resource. It doesn't just appear out of nowhere and its concerns are as much with keeping people well as with restoring health."

Among hospital observances at Benedictine is the annual Employee Recognition Day Dinner to be held Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Capri Restaurant in Port Ewen. A photographic hospital lobby display will feature Benedictine as "a center for life."

"Constant Care" buttons are being worn by all employees throughout the week as a reminder that Benedictine expresses its concern for the community by responding to its health care needs through continual growth and development.

The week will conclude Saturday with a dinner dance sponsored by the Benedictine Auxiliary at the Gov. Clinton Hotel for the benefit of the hospital building fund.

At Kingston Hospital, Michael Pagliaro, employee personnel director, said that a prolific poster display will be in evidence throughout the hospital and that employees and staff are wearing the "Constant Care" buttons. In addition all patients will be receiving tray favors and literature explaining the purpose of Hospital Week and the objectives of good health care.

It was pointed out that employee recognition is a year-round program with administration meeting with employees monthly.

Ellenville is holding a luncheon and fashion show today at Homawack Lodge in observance of National Hospital Week.

Northern Dutchess Hospital will conduct a program which is open to the public on "Crisis in Aging." Moderated by Evelyn Navy, it will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria conference room and explore problems associated with aging, especially in connection with admittance to a nursing home.

Panelists include Dr. Ernest Givonoli, consulting staff psychiatrist; Penelope Phiss, director of social services; Richard Marone, director of physical therapy and Mrs. Peggy Smith, director of recreational therapy.

Legal Secretaries Hold State Convention

The 15th annual convention of the New York State Legal Secretaries Association was held earlier this month at the Granit Hotel in Accord. Ulster County Legal Secretaries were host to more than 200 members. A host of distinguished guests were in attendance, and new officers were installed.

After registration members were welcomed at a reception, co-hosted by the Ulster County Bar Association and Info Search Company. Following dinner, an Executive Board meeting, Legal Assistant Task Force, Final Board of Governors meeting and Presidents Round Table were held. A midnight splash party took place in the Granit swimming pool.

Anna Belle Webb, president, reported that New York State had 22 chapters and 947 members. Reports were given by officers, governors and committee chairmen covering the operations of the state association.

Election of officers was held when Anna Belle Webb of New York City assumed the office of national director; Tanya Schmeler, Broome County, president; first vice president, Rose Mary Withun, Nassau County; second vice president, Kathryn Long, Rensselaer County; recording secretary, Barbara Lundmark, Chataqua County; treasurer, Dorothy VanVorce, Broome County; NALS Representative, Vivian Robilotto.

George A. Beck, City Court judge, was master of ceremonies for the Saturday luncheon. A welcome was extended on behalf of Mayor Francis R. Koenig, Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislators, was present on the dias.

Joel Rose, vice president and senior consultant of Daniel J. Cantor, Inc., of Philadelphia, Pa., was guest speaker and spoke on management consulting of the legal profession, and stressed ways of helping employers and getting the most out of day.

A workshop was presented. The program included a mock trial, homicide case in which the following were participants: County Court Judge George A. Beck; Court Clerk Warren McDowell; Court Stenographer Susan Lambertson; Court Official Mary Whalen; Defendants Barry Lippman and Carmela Cruise; Defense attorneys Charles Saccoman and Mel Higgins; Prosecutor Michael Kavanaugh; Arresting Officers Curtis Van Demark and Peter Graham; Coroner William Keyser; Fire Inspector William Schwerdtfeger; and Witness Karen Bitonte.

Len Cane, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, was master of ceremonies for the 15th annual state dinner. Robert Ronder, president of the Ulster County Bar Association, said the invocation and extended greetings from the Ulster County Bar Association.

Maurice Hinchey Jr., assemblyman for the 101st District, welcomed the 200 guests.

Lawrence H. Cooke, associate judge of the New York State Court of Appeals, installed the new state officers. Thomas F. Mayone, sheriff of Ulster County, escorted each officer to the dias to be installed by Judge Cooke.

Joan Belson, chairman of Chapter Achievements, presented awards to Buffalo, Westchester, Ulster and Suffolk Counties.

Benediction was offered by past president, Bette Maxson.

On Sunday morning, the first Board Meeting of new 1975-1976 officers and Board of Governors was held, at which time Warren County received the bid for the next annual convention at Lake George on May 14, 15, and 16, 1976.

Members of the convention committee were Michelle Schwerdtfeger, Karen Bitonte, Marlene Ganss, Alice Krom, Sue Lambertson, Arlene Sammons, Raquel Kleinfeld, Carmela Cruise, Patricia Vernoooy, Candy Schwerdtfeger, Uldine Rauner, Gayla DeFabio, Jackie Smith, Carol Teelon and Beatrice Zebree.

Mendelssohn Club Concert Tuesday

The Mendelssohn Club of Kingston will present its annual Spring Concert Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. at Kingston High School auditorium. This men's glee club, one of the finest in the Hudson Valley, has traditionally presented its Spring Concert on a complimentary basis.

Many old favorites along with several fun songs and selections by Richard Rodgers will be included in the program. A highlight of the evening will be a performance by David Ancker, a young bass soloist.

Complimentary tickets for the concert are available from any Mendelssohn Club member or at the door.

Area Spring Brides

Mr. and Mrs. William Oehler of Morgan Hill Road, West Hurley, announce the marriage of their daughter, Cornelia Ann, to Bradley Jay Ellentuch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Ellentuch of New York City. The Rev. David Gaise DD officiated at the ceremony at Oehler's Mt. Lodge.

The bride wore a creme white gown accented with lace and maroon ribbon.

Linda Lampert served as maid of honor, and best man was Bill Barrett.

A reception took place at Oehler's Mt. Lodge.

The bride is employed as a waitress at her father's Lodge. The bridegroom is an audio manager for Greylock Electronics.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Woodstock.

Marriage vows were exchanged in Trinity Episcopal Church, Saugerties, between Edna Frances Doud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Field Doud, 54 Lamb Avenue, Saugerties, and Joseph Michael Ferraro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore P. Ferraro, Market Street, Saugerties. The Rev. Richard G. Shepherd celebrated the nuptial Mass and officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Donna Robinson. Gary Michaelson of Holly, N.Y. served as best man.

A reception at La Rive, Catskill, followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Ferraro is a 1968 alumna of Saugerties High School. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree from Cedar Crest College in Allentown, Pa., in 1972, and is a member of the faculty in the Ontario school system, Boiceville.

The bridegroom, a 1967 graduate of Saugerties High School, attended Ulster County Community College and served two years in the U.S. Marine Corp from 1969 through 1970. He is employed by Leigh Portland Cement Company, Alsen, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferraro reside at 5140 Old Kings Highway, Saugerties.

First Congregational Church in Saugerties was the setting for the marriage of Maryann Kay Johnson of Saugerties and Daniel Thomas Ellsworth of Kingston. The Rev. Frederick Imhoff officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elton L. Johnson of 14 Robinson Street, Saugerties. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ellsworth of 168 Wrentham Street, Kingston.

Mrs. John Harris, organist, provided wedding selections. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She selected a gown of white polyester over satin accented with lace.

Toni Burgher of Malden-on-Hudson was maid of honor.

Serving as best man was William Ellsworth of Kingston, brother of the bridegroom. Ushering were David Prockup, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Richard S. Jones, both of Kingston.

A reception was given at Sawyerkill Restaurant in Saugerties.

MRS. BRADLEY JAY ELLENTUCH

The bride, a graduate of Saugerties High School and Ulster County Community College, is employed as a registered nurse at Benedictine Hospital.

Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School, attended UCCC, and is a certified electronic technician. The couple will reside at Valentine Avenue, Kingston.

Group Study of Weight Control And Physical Fitness

Mrs. Pat Stevens of Kingston, who is active in teaching physical fitness classes at the YMCA and at New Paltz, will demonstrate and teach physical exercises, in conjunction with a weight control lesson which will be presented by Mrs. Grace Markle, R.N. of Woodstock, at the Tuesday, May 13 meeting of the Relief Society of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, Fording Place Road, Lake Katrine. The meeting is set for 9:30 a.m.

One fourth of the U.S. population is overweight, about 50 million persons. Similar figures are available for many other countries. One third to one half of American children are reported to be obese. Overweight people run two to three times the risk of heart attack as those of normal weight. Many other interesting facets of the importance of weight control will be discussed. Visitors are always welcome.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl, graduating from high school this June. My problem is my parents. They don't want me to have anything to do with my boyfriend, who is 19, because I've been impregnated by him three times.

The first two times I was forced to get abortions, and the third time I waited too long, had the baby and placed him for adoption.

My parents have also heard bad things about my boyfriend, but he did those things when he was 15 and 16, and he has reformed now. He has a job and is staying out of trouble.

Abby, there is absolutely no way I could ever stop seeing him. He's a lot of fun to be with, and we love each other and want to get married some day. Please don't tell me to date others because he is the only one for me. We've been going steady for five years and don't like to sneak around behind my parents' backs. Please help me convince them to let me see him.

IN LOVE IN N.J.

DEAR IN: Sorry. I can't blame them for feeling as they do. They have been through three nightmarish experiences with you, and they're not looking for a fourth. When you have matured and are on your own, you won't need their permission, but because of your past mistakes you'll have to wait until then.

DEAR ABBY: With all due respect to Ripley's "Believe It or Not," there is no documentation to support its story that a 99-year-old American Indian woman gave birth to a child. And the same goes for the one about the 64-year-old woman who was said to have produced a child with her 80-year-old husband.

"The Guinness Book of Records" has documents to prove that Mrs. Ruth Alice Kistler (nee Taylor), at 57 years and 129 days old, gave birth to a daughter, Suzan, in Glendale, California on Oct. 18, 1956.

This is the oldest recorded birth of which there is certain evidence.

AN M.D.

DEAR M.D.: I'll buy "Guinness." But how about the Biblical Sarah who, at age 90, bore a son for her husband, Abraham, when he was 100? (Genesis 21)

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago, my father was told that he had kidney failure and would have to go on a dialysis machine.

Because his kidney failure was recent, the chance of obtaining a kidney transplant was small. (There are adults and children who have waited 10 years and longer for a kidney transplant because Americans are either unaware of the need or have hangups about having parts of their bodies removed after death.)

Thank heavens there was a dear man who had no such hangup. Unfortunately, he was in a fatal car accident, but he gave up his kidney, which matched my father's needs. That was two years ago, and my family is eternally grateful to that generous man.

Needless to say, the members of my entire family are card-carrying kidney donors. How I wish more people would become donors. If they knew how much it meant to people like us, they would be.

M.C.P. IN NEWPORT BEACH

DEAR M.C.P.: I am, and have been for four years. And if my readers want to leave a legacy of inestimable value, write to The National Kidney Foundation, 116 East 27th Street, N.Y., N.Y. 10016 for a donor card.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Todd: Finley's Biggest Bargain

OAKLAND (UPI) — Over the years, Charlie Finley has picked off some pretty good players from the waiver list and he's never been bashful about their salaries.

Deron Johnson, Matty, Felipe and Jesus Alou and Vic Davalillo come to mind as big salaried players who made a contribution. Billy Williams, currently on the Oakland A's roster, also fits the mold but as yet, he hasn't lived up to promise.

The player, though, who could prove to be Finley's biggest bargain is pitcher Jim Todd, a nondescript reliever for the Chicago Cubs last year who became expendable this spring because of roster problems.

Finley, who was looking for a right-handed reliever to spell Rollie Fingers ever since the 1974 World Series, was talking to Cubs Executive Vice President John Holland this spring when he told him Todd was available if Finley wanted him. The Cubs were willing to part with Todd if Finley would promise a player at a later date.

"Charlie jumped at the chance," A's Manager Alvin Dark recalled Sunday after Todd had come to Vida Blue's rescue to save a 7-5 victory over the New York Yankees. "We figured we had nothing to lose since we were in a bind so we took the chance. I'd say to this point it's been a pretty good move."

In six appearances, Todd has given up only 13 hits in 15 innings and saved three games. More important, he has given Fingers, who appeared in a record 76 games last year plus two more in the Playoffs and four in the World Series, the rest he needs to be effective.

How does Todd, a 27-year-old native of Lancaster, Pa., who is 6-foot-2 and 190, feel about being with the A's?

"Great," he said. "The Cubs didn't need me and wanted me to go to the minors but I refused. It was a lucky break for me to get a chance with a club like the A's. I know I can pitch in the big leagues and believe me, it's a lot less wearing doing it for a good club."

The Yankees knocked out Blue, who eventually gained credit for his seventh victory, in the seventh on a two-run homer by Bobby Bonds and Todd took over with two out. He retired the next seven men in order to lock up things.

Joe Rudi, with a single and homer, drove in three of A's runs and Williams, who is hitting .200, added two RBIs. Oakland sewed up Sunday's game with six runs in the third inning. The A's go back to work tonight against Boston while the Yankees have the day off before starting a series in Anaheim.

The Baltimore Orioles bounced back from a 6-4 loss to win the second game of their doubleheader with the Minnesota Twins 9-3. The Texas Rangers beat the Detroit Tigers 11-7. The Cleveland Indians shaded the Chicago White Sox 4-3. The Kansas City Royals topped the Milwaukee Brewers 4-0, and the Boston Red Sox downed the California Angels 5-2, in other AL games.

Orioles 4-9 Twins 6-3

Steve Blye and Craig Kusick each drove in two runs and Bert Blyleven pitched a six-hitter raising his record to 4-1 in the Twins' first game triumph. The Orioles won the second game behind Jim Palmer's nine-hitter with the big blows two homers by Bobby Grich and Al Bumbry's bases-filled double.

Rangers 11 Tigers 7

Homers by Jeff Burroughs, Leo Cardenas, Roy Smalley and Tom Grieve paced the Rangers' 15-hit attack which brought Ferguson Jenkins his fifth win against two losses. Jenkins needed relief help from Steve Foucault in the free-hitting game. Mickey Lolich suffered the loss for the Tigers.

Indians 4 White Sox 3

Tom McCraw's infield single drove in the tying run and successive errors on the play by Terry Forster and Bob Coluccio allowed the winning run to score for the Indians in the 11th inning. The White Sox had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the inning when Nyls Nyman drove in Tony Muser from second base. The victory snapped the Indians' five-game losing streak.

Royals 4 Brewers 0

Steve Busby pitched a five-hitter and struck out nine, raising his record to 5-2, in the Royals' victory. Harmon Killebrew singled home one run, stole his first base in four years and scored on a single by Cookie Rouas as the Royals scored three runs in the fourth inning.

Red Sox 5 Angels 2

Two-run singles by Rico Petrocelli and Rick Burleson led the Red Sox to their win over the Angels and gave Bill Lee his fourth win of the season. Bill Singer, tagged for seven hits and three runs in 6-2-3 innings, was handed his fifth defeat.

Beautiful Day for Seaver

NEW YORK (UPI) — Once the first-inning horror show was finished, it turned into a beautiful day for Tom Seaver.

The sky was cloudless, the weather was warm and the New York Mets snapped their six-game losing streak with a 3-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds behind Seaver's six-hitter.

But, that's hardly the way Seaver's day started.

On his fourth pitch of the game, Pete Rose jarred Seaver's ego with a shot that landed atop the right-center-field fence 400 feet away and bounced over for a home run.

"The pitch to Rose I thought was good," Seaver said after the game, "but one that's hit that far can't be too good."

Seaver hardly had time to recover from that shot when Ken Griffey aimed for the same spot and bounced a one-hopper off the fence for a double. Joe Morgan's grounder advanced Griffey to third, but Seaver struck out Johnny Bench for the second out.

Then Dan Driessen topped a slow roller between the mound and first base which Seaver ran over to pick up. It was slow-motion agony for Seaver.

"It was an easy play," Seaver said. "But the ball seemed to take a crooked hop in toward me. I saw it and I didn't move my glove. I don't know why. It just went behind my glove."

The victory improved Seaver's record this season to 4-3.

New York's other hero Sunday was 24-year-old Texan Mike Phillips, who was picked up on waivers from the San Francisco Giants last week. After singling to lead off the eighth, Phillips scored the winning run on Rusty Staub's ground single to right.

In the top half of the inning, Phillips was the middle man on a letter-perfect relay from the left-centerfield fence which nailed Rose at the plate trying to score the go-ahead run.

John Milner drove in the first two Mets' runs with a second-inning homer and a fourth-inning groundout.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, Don Sutton, who has never won 20 games in a season, became the league's first seven-game winner with a 7-0 victory for the Dodgers over Pittsburgh; St. Louis edged San Francisco, 6-0; Houston beat Montreal, 6-0; Atlanta downed Philadelphia, 7-3; and San Diego slipped by Chicago, 2-1.

Sutton received help from Ron Cey who went three-for-four including a triple and a run-scoring double. The Los Angeles right hander has hurled three shutouts this season.

Four consecutive extra-base hits, including a two-run home run by Ted Simmons, in the first inning accounted for all the Reds' runs and allowed them to edge San Francisco.

Roger Metzger drove in three runs and had as many hits, including a home run, to complement Larry Dierker's five-hitter and lead the Astros over the Expos.

Earl Williams hit a two-run homer and Ralph Garr added a three-run shot for all the Braves' earned runs, but four Phillie errors allowed them the winning margin.

Hector Torres' eight inning single knocked in the winning run for the Padres.

It's at a point where the Philadelphia Flyers are just waiting for the magic wand to wilt—it has already produced eight miracles for the Islanders.

A ninth miracle may be asking too much.

Miracle No. 8 occurred before a national television audience Sunday as the Islanders won their third straight game from the Flyers to even their Stanley Cup semifinal series at three games apiece.

The deciding game of the series—to determine who will oppose the Buffalo Sabres for the Stanley Cup—will be played in Philadelphia Tuesday.

Defensemen Denis Potvin and Gerry Hart beat Flyer netminder Bernie Parent with long shots Sunday to give the Islanders a 2-1 victory—and also their eighth triumph under win-or-be-eliminated pressure.

The Islanders captured the deciding game of their three-game qualifying series with the New York Rangers then rallied to take four straight quarter-final games from the Pittsburgh Penguins after dropping the first three. Philadelphia also jumped in front three games to none against the Islanders.

"Someone told me they had won eight games to stay alive in the playoffs," Philadelphia captain Bobby Clarke said. "I'd say they're about due to lose one."

"They're playing to the best of their ability," Flyer left wing Bill Barber said. "We're not. We haven't been for the past three games. We just have to resolve individually that we are going to give it our best shot."

"If they play their best Tuesday and we play our best—there's no doubt we will win."

Philadelphia jumped out to a 1-0 lead Sunday before two minutes had elapsed in the game when Ross Lonsberry tipped in a Joe Watson shot from the blue line. Denis Potvin got that one back on a power play at 16:15 of the second period and Hart insured the miracle with just his sixth goal in 87 regular and postseason games this season with 3:42 gone in the final period.

"We just take it one miracle at a time," New York Coach Al Arbour beamed after the game. "We try to win every individual shift. If we do that, we can win a period—and if we do that we can win a game. You win enough games and you win a series, and if you win enough series' you win the Stanley Cup."

Only one other team has ever come from a three game deficit to win a Stanley Cup series and that was the 1942 Toronto Maple Leafs. Now the Islanders have a chance to capture back-to-back series' from that predicament.

"We realize we're on the threshold of accomplishing something that has never been done before and probably never will be achieved again," said goaltender Glenn Resch, who came off the bench to win the four straight against Pittsburgh and has been in nets for all three wins against Philadelphia.

"We won't head into that seventh game overconfident," Hart said. "Not in their building. I think they are capable of playing better, and I think they will Tuesday."

"We'll be ready," Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero asserted. "This is the first time all season we'll be playing game that could be our last."

Another team playing game that could be its last is the Quebec Nordiques, who take on the Houston Aeros Monday night in game four of their best-of-seven Avco Cup World Hockey Association series. Houston has won 11 first three games, including 2-0 triumph in game three Saturday night in Quebec City.

Should Quebec win, the series will head back to Houston for Game 5 on Wednesday.

'Smartest Team' In NBA

Washington D.C. boasts some of the finest universities and colleges in the nation but some of the area's best students do not even attend classes. They play basketball.

The Washington Bullets, always a team long on talent but short on glory, Sunday moved to within four steps of capturing their first NBA title. The Bullets came close once before, but fell in four straight games in the championship round to the Milwaukee Bucks in 1971.

Washington earned its finals berth with a stunning 98-92 victory over the defending champion Boston Celtics in the sixth game.

"We got smart fast," Washington Coach K.C. Jones explained. "That's the smartest team in the whole league. They take advantage of everything if you let them. We had to learn fast to beat them at their own game. We did a pretty good job of it."

Beating the Celtics at their own game consisted of taking the boards away from Dave Cowens and depriving Boston guards Jo Jo White and Don Chaney of controlling the tempo.

Elvin Hayes and Wes Unseld shared honors in taking rebounds out of Cowens' hands as the Bullets grabbed 53 to the Celtics' 42. Phil Chenier and Kevin Porter outgunned Boston guards by hitting for 24 and 21 points. Chaney and White hit for just 22 points between them.

"Today, we proved we can be recognized and respected," Chenier said.

"We think we can win it all now," Porter added.

Washington's opponent in the final round is still undetermined, thanks to the Golden State Warriors' upset of the Chicago Bulls in game six Sunday in Chicago. Rick Barry scored 36 points in the 86-72 victory to even the series at three games apiece.

The seventh game will be played Wednesday in Oakland. "I don't think it's any great satisfaction beating my old teacher and teammates," Jones said. "I feel bad for them just like I did for the teams that lost to us when I played for the Celtics. But it's great to be on top."

Washington led the entire game as the Boston hit a meager 38.8 per cent of its shots. The Bullets led 51-40 at the half.

"The Bullets are a fine basketball team," Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn said.

"They're the best team," Celtic forward John Havlicek acknowledged. "They proved it."

Ashe Had Some Assistance

DALLAS (UPI) — Now that Arthur Ashe has won the World Championship Tennis crown, perhaps he should give an assist to the player who plagued him the most—Rod Laver.

Ashe, however, might decide to give the assist to that red-haired, half-Spanish, half-Swedish gypsy he met in a coffee shop in Stockholm last month and who told him he would win in Dallas.

But whoever gets the assist, it is Ashe who receives the $50,000, a luxury automobile and a $1,000 diamond ring for knocking off the youthful but weary Bjorn Borg in the WCT finals Sunday.

Ashe struggled for a set, just as he had in the quarterfinals against Mark Cox and the semifinals against John Alexander, before his serve began to work and his short, cut shots began to creep over the net.

"The frustration was there just under the surface," said Ashe after his 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0 victory over the 18-year-old Borg, who reached the finals for the second straight year and received $20,000 as a consolation prize.

"I had a lot of opportunities and kept blowing them early in the match. I got more and more frustrated. I began to wonder what I had to do to win."

Ashe's game finally came around in the second and third sets and Borg gave Ashe credit for that. But Borg also felt he had something taken out of him Friday night when he battled Laver for four hours in a sensational match that left both players drained.

"I gave everything against Laver," said Borg. "I was so tired after that match, both mentally and physically. At the end, against Arthur, I didn't move as well. My legs were tired."

So Laver, who has never won a WCT title and who owns 11 wins in 20 tries against Ashe, seems to have provided some help for Ashe, who joined Ken Rosewall (a two-time winner), Stan Smith and John Newcombe as WCT champions.

But perhaps the gypsy helped, too.

"I met her in this coffee shop and the first thing I knew she was showing me some tricks with matches and then she was reading my palm," said Ashe. "She told me I was going to win this week. She spoke halting English and didn't know me from Adam, but she told me a lot of things about myself that were true. She had no way to know them."

"She also told me I was going to get married in two or three years and lead a long life."

After losing the first set, Ashe seemed on his way to losing the match when Borg moved ahead in the second set, 4-2. With Ashe serving in the seventh game of that set, Borg won the first point by rushing to the net to reach a drop shot and punch it cross court for a winner.

The capacity crowd let out its largest ovation of the day and Ashe seemed stunned that Borg could have reached such a shot. It looked then as if Borg might have applied the killer blow but, as it turned out, it was the high point of Borg's day.

Ashe went on to hold serve in that game, break Borg in the eighth game and again in the 10th to win the set.

Borg could hold serve only twice in the final two sets. With the weariness obvious in the final set, and with Ashe serving aces at will, Borg was put away.

Congratulations

Swedish teenager Bjorn Borg (L) congratulates Arthur Ashe after the latter successfully battled his own carelessness to win the WCT title Sunday. (UPI)

Ulster No-Hit Game

KINGSTON The Kiwanis Yankees, defending round robin champs from the Town of Ulster Little League, opened their 1975 season with a bang as Chuck Scheffel and Jeff Werber combined for a no-hitter in a 4-3 victory over the Indians.

Losing pitcher Gerry Hladik flipped a one-hitter for the Indians.

In the Rondout Valley league, Stoney Smith fanned 16 batters in tossing a 2-1 three-hitter for the Braves over the Indians.

John Swint knocked in six runs and pitched a three-hitter as Ramsey Corporation up-ended Bankers Trust, 13-5, in the Jaycee League.

Coaches Meet
NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Football League's 26 head coaches open three days of meetings here today.

Artie's Take 2-0 Lead In 'A' Playoff Series

KINGSTON Artie's Bar completely dominated the second half after trailing 43-37 in the first half to defeat Edgar's 92-84 and take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-three series for the YMCA "A" Basketball League playoffs.

Meanwhile, Artie's Bar and The Well Woodpack split their first two games. The Well won the opener, 84-73 and Artie's rallied for a 90-88 squeaker to tie the series.

Earl Edmonds registered 23 of his 28 points in the second half, as Artie's with 30 points and Bert Henderson added 25.

Ted Wood was the Edgar ace with a game-high total of 38 points and 24 rebounds. Willis Locke had 16 and Don Kamosa and Bill Brady a dozen each. Edmonds hauled in 15 rebounds for Artie's

Bill Egan rimmed 26 and Frank Samms 25 (with 22 rebounds) for The Well in the "B" series opener. Ted Van Dyke led Artie's with 30 and Mike Kiernan added 21.

Van Dyke's jumper with three seconds left to play enabled Artie's to tie the B playoffs. The Well led 40-36 at the half. Artie's had a 54-48 second half margin but it was down to 88-88 when Van Dyke connected for his 21st and 22nd points. Keith Jones and Mike Kiernan added 19 each.

Frank Samms of The Well took game honors with 31 points. Jim Adams hit 22 and John Callahan 17, as the lead changed hands 23 times. Samms led the rebounders with 18.

League Considered

MUNICH (UPI) — European tennis leaders are considering the idea of forming a league of their own in hopes of getting their share of the tennis dollar. West German Tennis Federation President Walther Rosenthal said Sunday.

As a first step towards the goal of keeping crack European players away from the World Championship of Tennis indoor circuit, European associations plan to run the so-called "Kings Cup" tournament next winter in the form of a series with home and away games.

Bolt Hits Barn

It is said that lightning never strikes twice in the same place, but it came relatively close on Sunday when, for the second time in two days, Highland firemen were called to North Elting Corners Road, after a bolt struck a barn.

There was only minor damage to the barn near the Lansing residence, according to Highland Fire Chief Joseph Valentino.

Sunday's run-in with a bolt from the blue was located only about a mile from a similar, but more devastating occurrence on Saturday. Then a bolt of lightning struck a house, knocking large holes in the wall, popping electric fixtures from ceilings and walls and destroying all electrical appliances that were plugged in.

Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, which showed comeback strength last week, opened higher Monday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 9.63-point gain Friday, was ahead 0.31 to 850.44 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, ending to 84, among the 419 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover amounted to around 670,000 shares.

Investors reacted strongly to the latter part of last week to indications the recession may have reached a bottom and the economy may be leveling out.

But there still were concerns about the pace of the recovery and about the stability of the bond market.

Dealer's Death Shocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The murder of international art dealer Jon Streep, who was repeatedly stabbed in his suite at a fashionable East Side hotel, has sent ripples of shock through the New York art community.

Streep, a naturalized American citizen who lived in Amsterdam, Holland, was found by police early Sunday in his room at the Hyde Park Hotel, bleeding to death from 16 stab wounds in his head and stomach.

The officers tried to stop the bleeding with a towel but Streep died before medical help could arrive.

A man said to be an acquaintance of the art dealer, Harry Orloff, 23, of Troy, was charged with the murder after detectives reportedly found him in the hotel lobby wearing a leather jacket, no shirt and with blood stains on his chest. Police refused to speculate on a motive for the slaying.

One gallery owner, Gertrude Stein, said she knew Streep "very well" and had previously heard of Orloff.

Richard Ravenel, director of the Asian Gallery, exclaimed, "Oh, dear God!" when told about the murder in the nearby hotel, "I didn't know him, but it's frightening that it happened so close by," he said.

Ben Brillo, another gallery owner, said he knew Streep but "hadn't seen him in years."

But, he added, "I liked him very much. One of the most impressive things about Streep was that he handled everything from classical to pop art. One minute he'd come up with an Oldenburg, the next he'd find a Tiffany lamp."

Brillo described Streep as about 5-feet-10-inches and slightly balding and said he was a "colorful character—a wheeler-dealer, but not in the bad sense."

Area Woman Injured

TOWN OF ULSTER

A young Hurley woman was listed in fair condition today at Benedictine Hospital after sustaining multiple injuries Sunday afternoon when she was thrown from her car, which flipped over several times on Route 209 in the Town of Ulster.

State police said Mrs. Patricia Gordon, 22, was driving south on Route 209 near the intersection with Route 28 at about 4 p.m. when her car ran off the right side of the road, hit the guard rails, came back onto the road, and then overturned on the roadway.

Mrs. Gordon was taken from the scene by Doctor's Ambulance.

No summonses were issued. Tpr. Gary Van Allen investigated the mishap.

Meanwhile, two persons were injured, one seriously, in a one-car crash early today on Route 23B in the Town of Catskill.

Leeds State Police said a car operated by Brian Peterson, 19, of Purling, skidded on wet pavement and careened off the right side of the roadway.

Peterson, who sustained serious back injuries, was taken to Albany Medical Center Hospital following the 4:35 a.m. crash. A passenger, Richard Schwabacher, 18, of Purling, was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital suffering from arm injuries. No tickets were issued.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Someone you'll be dealing with today will anger you. You'll keep it to yourself and smolder, rather than let him know.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Don't let a disagreement with a pal over something material jeopardize a friendship. Take the loss, if necessary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
If the boss gives you a specific order today, follow it to the letter, or you're sure to incur his wrath.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Keep your opinions to yourself now about something that does not involve you directly, but does affect a sensitive friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Someone who doesn't operate completely in the open will put some stumbling blocks in your path today. However, don't let him know you're on to him.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Diplomacy and tact are called for in an important career matter or you will anger one whose co-operation is essential now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Don't take something for repair or service to one you've had problems with before.

Find someone more reliable. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
You tend to be a bit too possessive today with one you're emotionally involved with. Loosen the reins or you'll anger him.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Try to see and understand your mate's point of view on a vital family issue that he feels very strongly about.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Don't let yourself be rushed with tasks requiring tools today. What you don't finish can be completed later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
This is one of those days where you won't be as prudent with your resources as you should. Some loss is likely.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
The example you set for your family today is the one they'll follow. If you're cranky and short-tempered, expect the same from them.

Trump Ace Can Be Big One

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jim: "The Bols bridge tips competition is certainly bringing out some fine tips from the masters."

Oswald: "Giorgio Belladonna of Italy may well be the best player in the world. His tip is,

"The most powerful card is the ace of trumps. When you are lucky enough to hold it, try to play it at the right time."

Jim: "The hand isn't really complicated. North and South have 27 high-card points and reach what turns out to be an optimistic game contract after West's opening bid."

Oswald: "Giorgio suggests that after winning the first heart, South should cross to dummy, play the six of spades and go up with the king."

Jim: "That play is designed to encourage West to use his ace of trumps right then and there. If he does, South will make his contract. West will lead the queen and jack of hearts, but South will discard a losing club and West will have his last trick."

Oswald: "West can beat the contract by refusing both the first and second trump leads. If South plays a third trump you take your ace, lead hearts and beat him two tricks. If South abandons trumps you make your last small trump and beat him one trick."

Gov. Brown, Chavez In Agreement

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has struck a historic accord between growers and United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez which may end strife and violence in the state's $10 billion farm industry.

When Brown first unveiled his farm labor proposal a month ago Chavez at first denounced it as "not betrayal, but close." Other labor groups opposed it.

After 100 hours of negotiations last week, Brown came out with a compromise bill calling for secret ballot union elections and it zipped through its first and perhaps toughest legislative test.

Supporters now predict the legislation will become law in time for next year's growing season.

"I think an historic moment is drawing near not only for people in agriculture but for people of this country," Brown said shortly before the senate industrial relations committee approved the measure on a bipartisan 5-1 vote.

The committee was considered the bill's most arduous hurdle since its members have been sympathetic to Chavez' bitter union rival — the Teamsters — and growers.

But supporters concede forceful opposition by the Teamsters and the Building Trades Council still could derail the landmark legislation.

"No one has anything to fear ... if they (union leaders) can win at a secret ballot election," countered Rose Bird, Brown's chief farm labor negotiator.

The Building Trades Council is upset because the measure would take away their jurisdiction over construction on farms.

Chavez' major concession was the bill's sharp restriction on secondary boycotts, which he used successfully to pressure growers into signing contracts after nationwide grape and lettuce boycotts.

Under the legislation, harvest-time strikes would be permitted and workers would be allowed to vote for "no union."

A five-member state Agricultural Relations Board would supervise elections.

"We have the framework to resolve the disputes that inevitably arise in farm labor," Brown said.

More Trouble Expected In Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — Several officials predict additional racial conflict among police officers due to a scuffle last week over planned job layoffs.

"Violence and racial problems in the police department don't really surprise me," Mayor Coleman Young said during the weekend. "The conditions for problems exist in the department."

A federal court order Friday that banned the city from laying off a group of mostly black and female officers hired with federal funds touched off a clash between several white and one black officer.

Guns were drawn in the scuffle, which took place among off-duty officers demonstrating against the city-ordered layoffs of more than 800 police officers.

Young, reacting strongly to the display, accused the white officers of staging a "drunken brawl" and called for strict action against any of the officers found responsible in an internal investigation of the fiasco.

"The officers who took part in the display of public drunkenness and beer throwing reveal an attitude that is provocative," he said. "They aren't doing a bit of good and they are a danger to the people of this city."

An Appeal From Souvanna For Laotians to Remain Calm

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Premier Souvanna Phouma appealed to the nation today to remain calm in the face of the rapidly deteriorating political situation that has given the pro-Communist Pathet Lao increased power in the cabinet.

The Communist Pathet Lao accused Thailand of supporting a coup to overthrow the coalition government's leftists, who became a major factor when four rightist ministers resigned last week.

As the Pathet Lao moved to consolidate political power in this only non-Communist nation left in Indochina, Souvanna went on national radio to allay mounting national panic.

"In reality, the situation of our country is not serious," Souvanna said. "The government has not changed its role and policies but will firmly continue to apply the Vientiane peace agreement and its protocols."

A Vietnam News Agency broadcast monitored in Tokyo today said the rightists in the coalition, led by former Defense Minister Sisouk Na Champassak, plotted a coup against the Communists last Tuesday.

There was no immediate reaction to the charge from the loyalists in the Laotian government and no information on what action the Pathet Lao took against the alleged plot. Sisouk was among the four key rightist cabinet members who resigned Saturday. He was reported in the southern part of the country and not expected to return to Vientiane.

Quoting the Pathet Lao news agency, VNA said, "The Thai reactionaries sent their gunboats and artillery to support Sisouk Na Champassak and ordered Thai troops to infiltrate the administrative capital of Vientiane."

The VNA report said the rightists laid ambushes at several places in Vientiane and called artillery and tanks into the capital.

The broadcast said the rightists also ordered T28 fighter-bombers at Longcheng Airport in Savannakhet province in southern Laos, and Udorn Airbase in Thailand to stand by. At the same time, it said, troops in Savannakhet were ordered to cross the border into Thailand and garison themselves at Chinaimo Camp.

Souvanna had earlier warned of "important changes" in Laos, the only

In his speech he asked all elements of the population to keep up their day to day work. Part of his speech was addressed directly to Chinese,

Vietnamese and Indians who control the capital's economy and whose mass flight within the past week has caused the value of the Laotian currency to plummet as they turn it into dollars on the black market.

OAS Assembly Gets Underway

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The matter of ending U.S. and Latin American sanctions against Cuba must for now be left "a little bit to secret diplomacy," says Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

But Kissinger, meeting with foreign ministers attending the Organization of American States' general assembly this week, said Saturday "a general understanding" has been reached among members on how to deal with the 11-year old economic sanctions.

The OAS assembly went into formal committee sessions today and will elect a new secretary general today or Tuesday.

Paraguayan Foreign Minister Raul Sapena Pastor withdrew his candidacy for the post Sunday, virtually assuring the election of Argentina's ambassador to the United States, Alejandro Orfila, to succeed Secretary General Galo Plaza. The other candidate is Dominican Republic Foreign Minister Victor Gomez Berge.

Kissinger left open the possibility that the 1964 trade embargo may be ended at a special hemispheric conference later this year.

"We are coming to some understanding on how to proceed," Kissinger told reporters after a meeting with Latin American and Caribbean foreign ministers. "I don't expect any concrete decision here ... but we will have a general discussion on Cuba."

Asked whether there is now a scenario for OAS or U.S. action to lift the Cuban embargo, Kissinger said: "I have the impression that there is and I think it will become apparent during this session. We have a general understanding of where we are going to go."
